

Process Overview

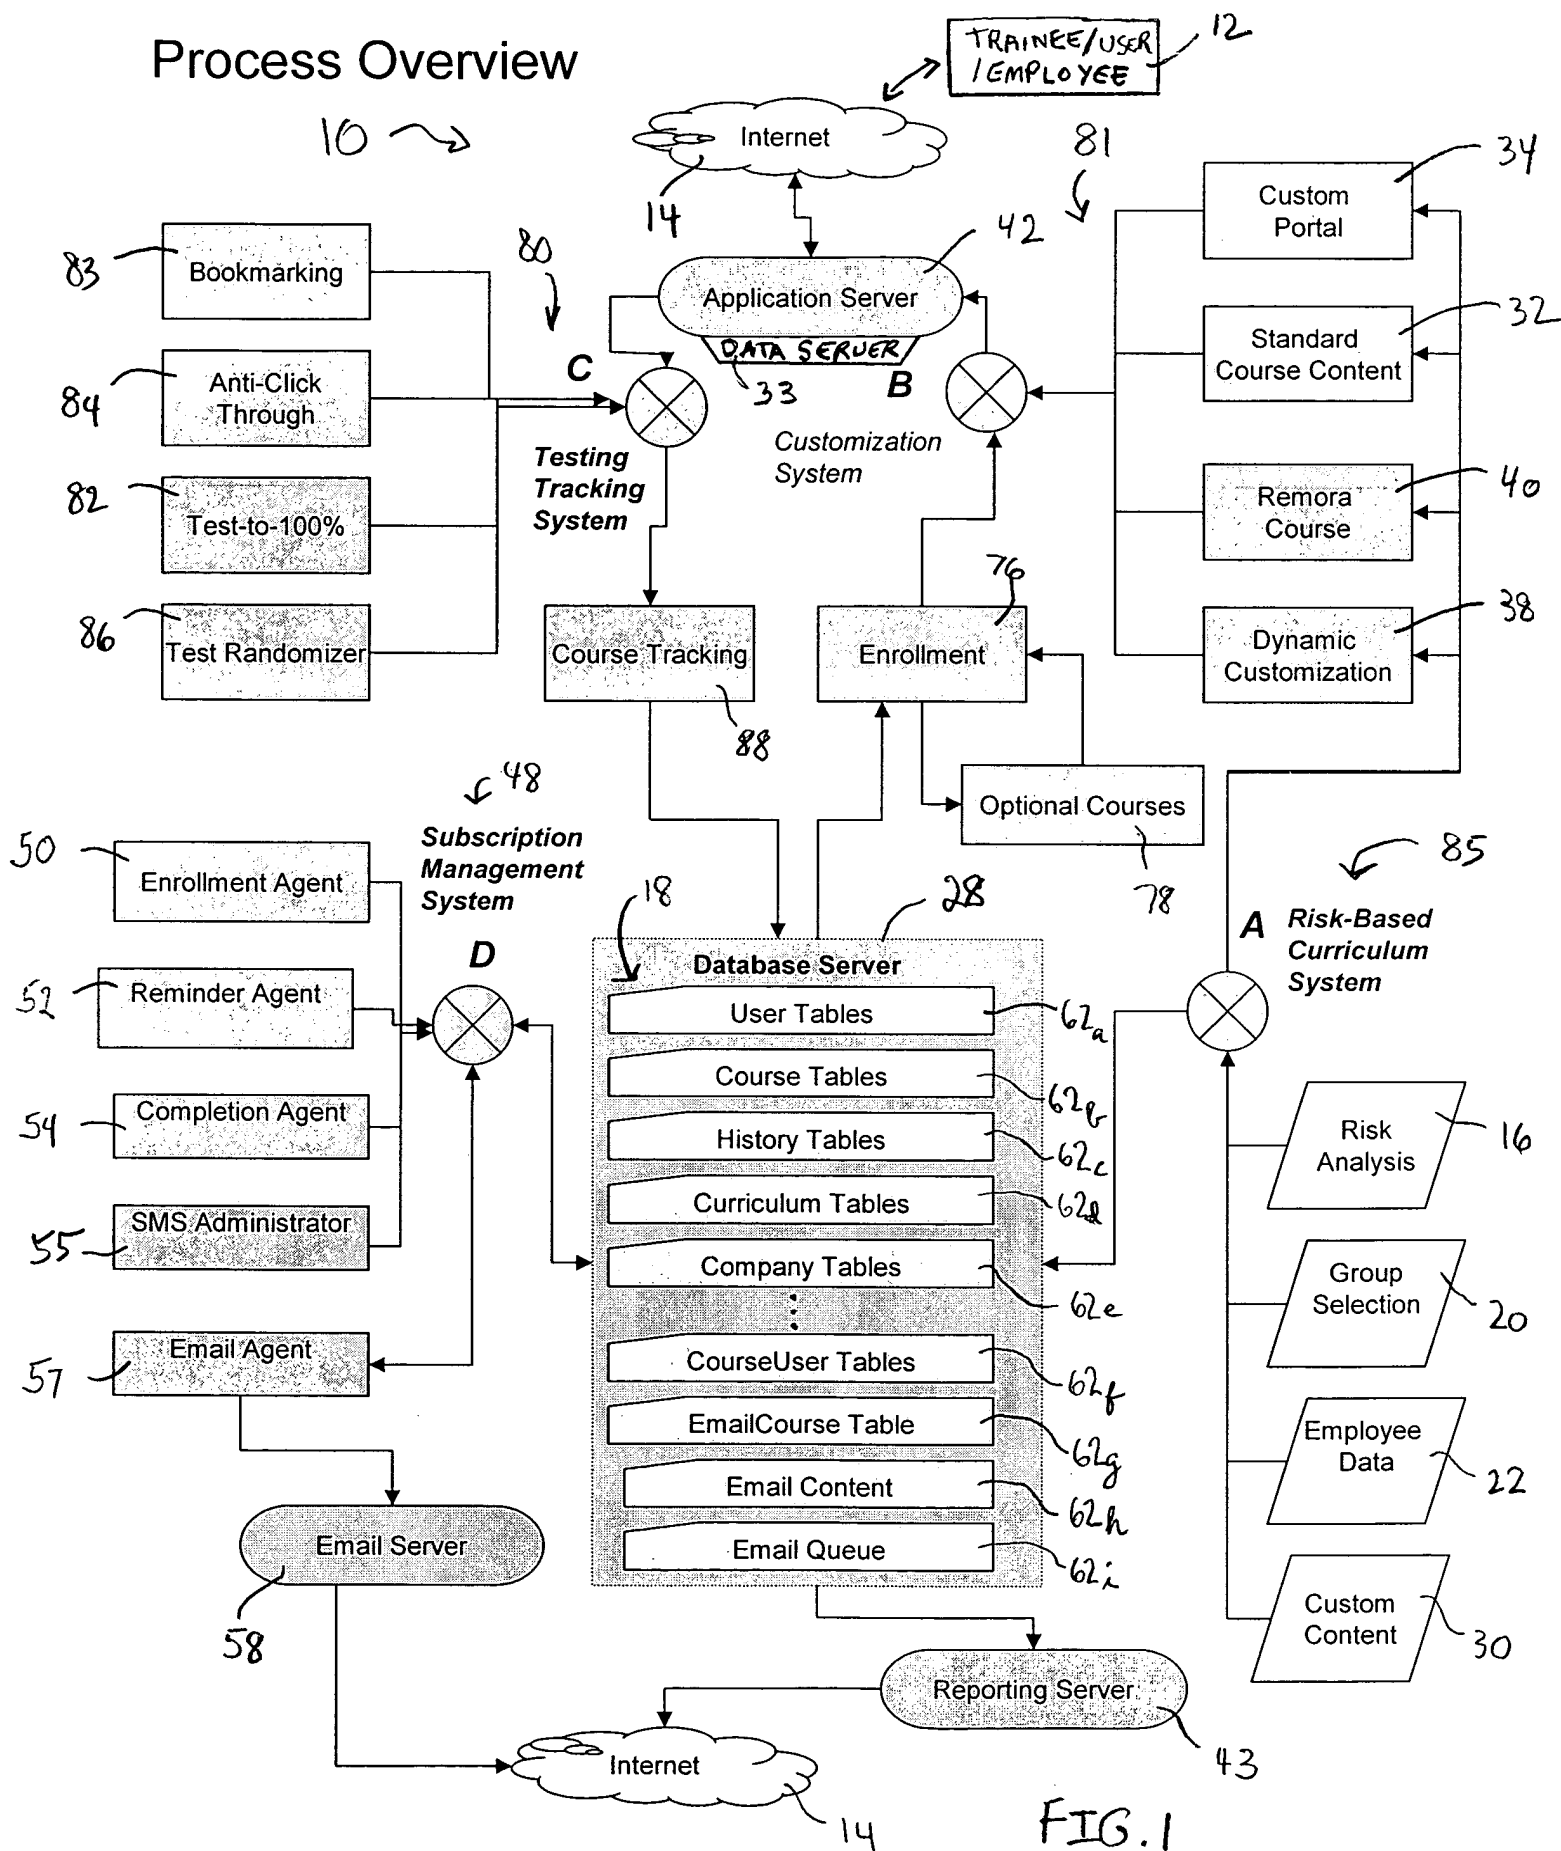

FIG. 1

Program Initialization

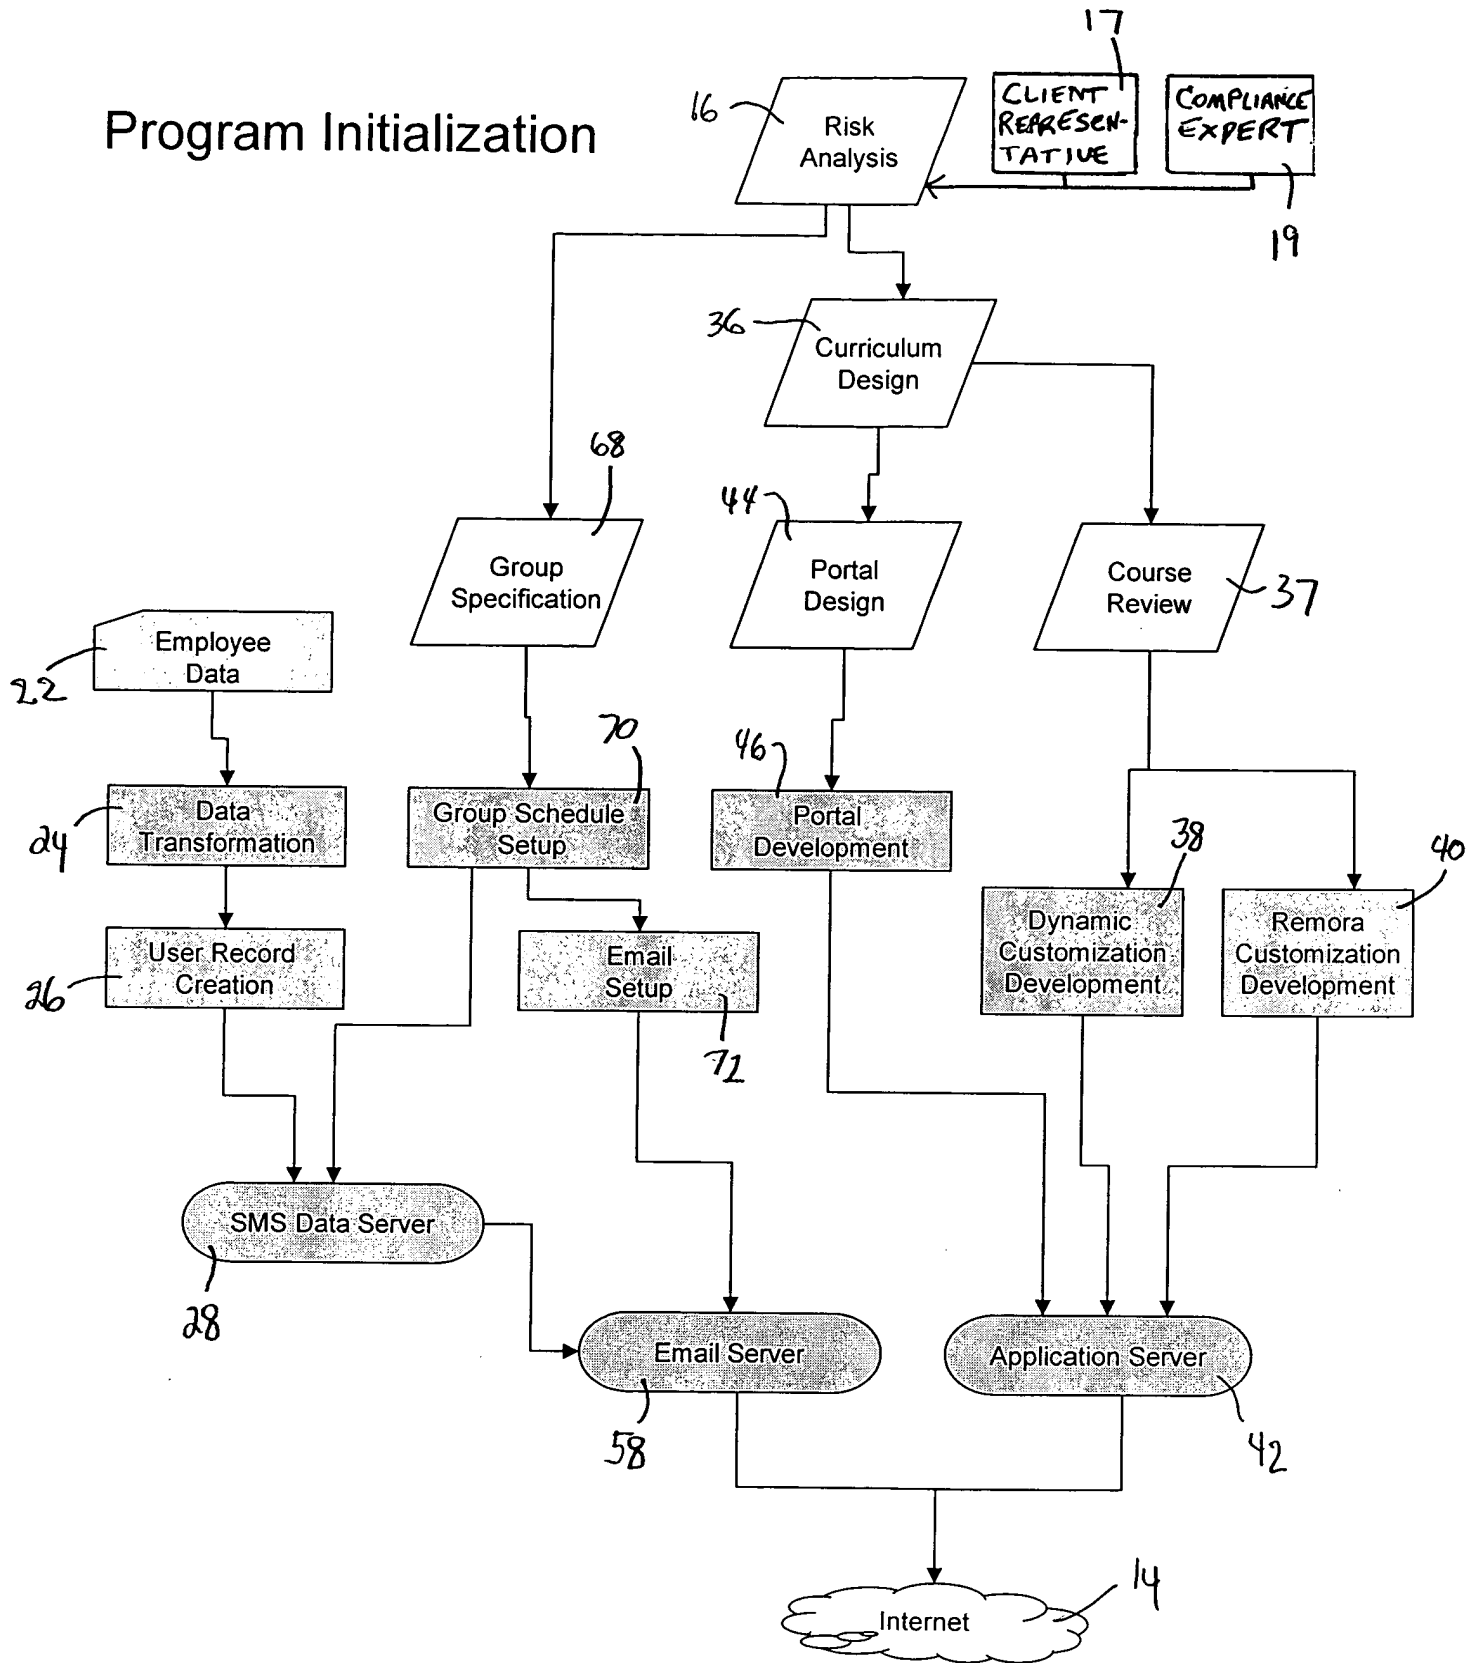

FIG. 2

Training Delivery

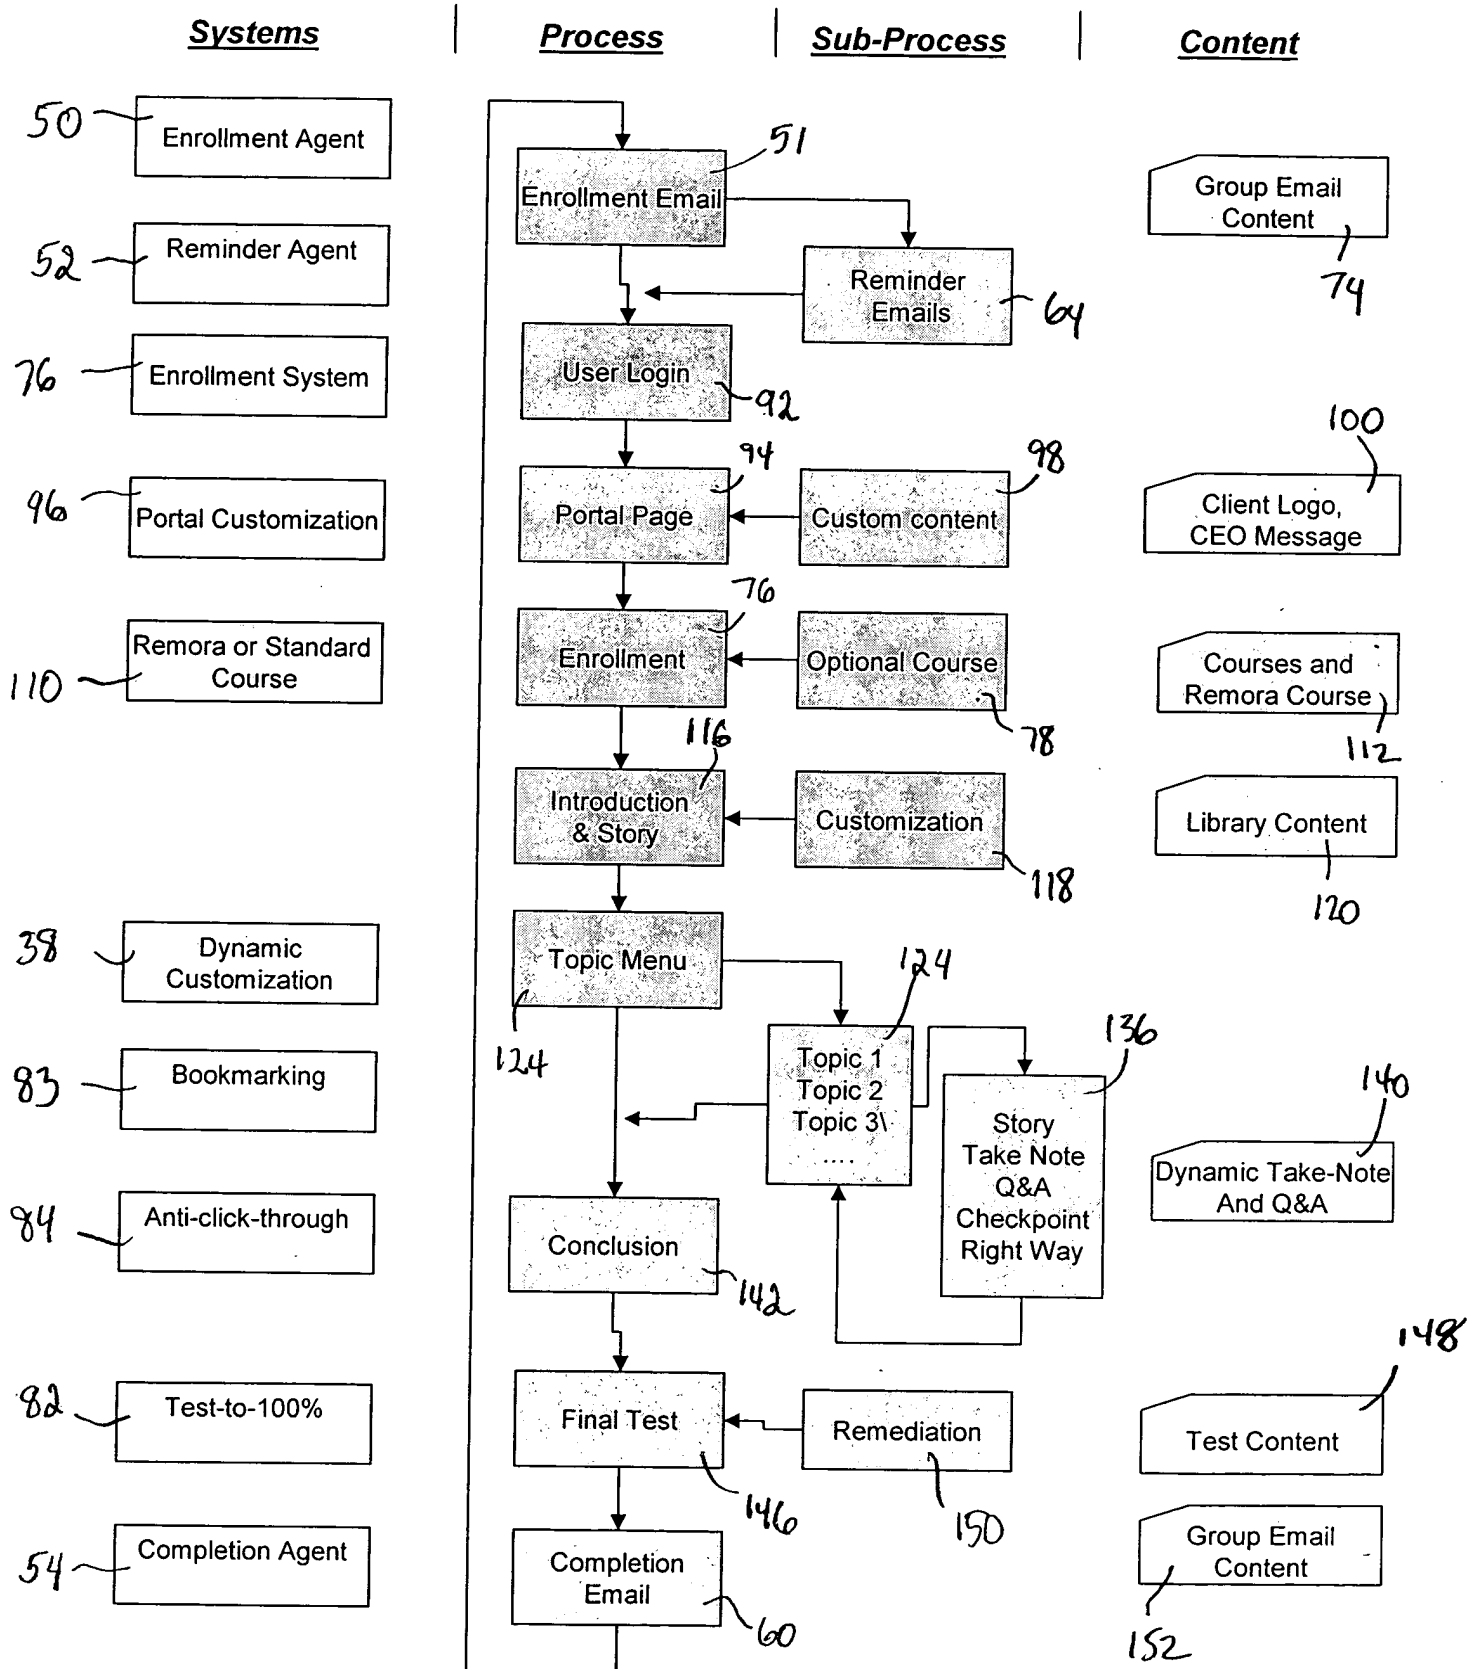

FIG. 3

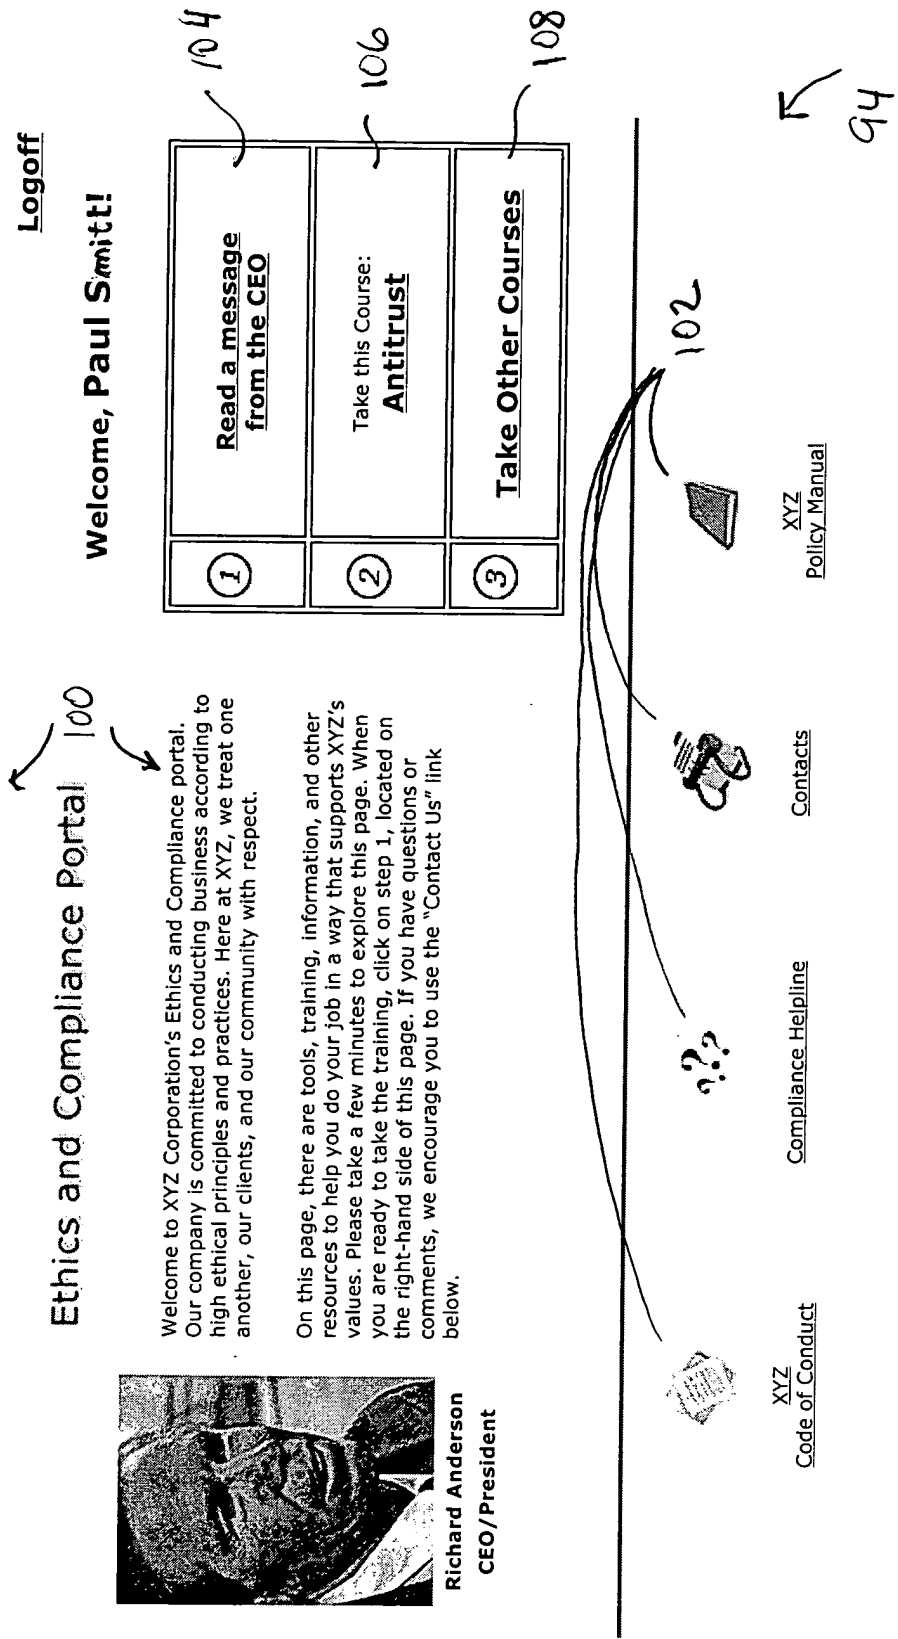

FIG. 4

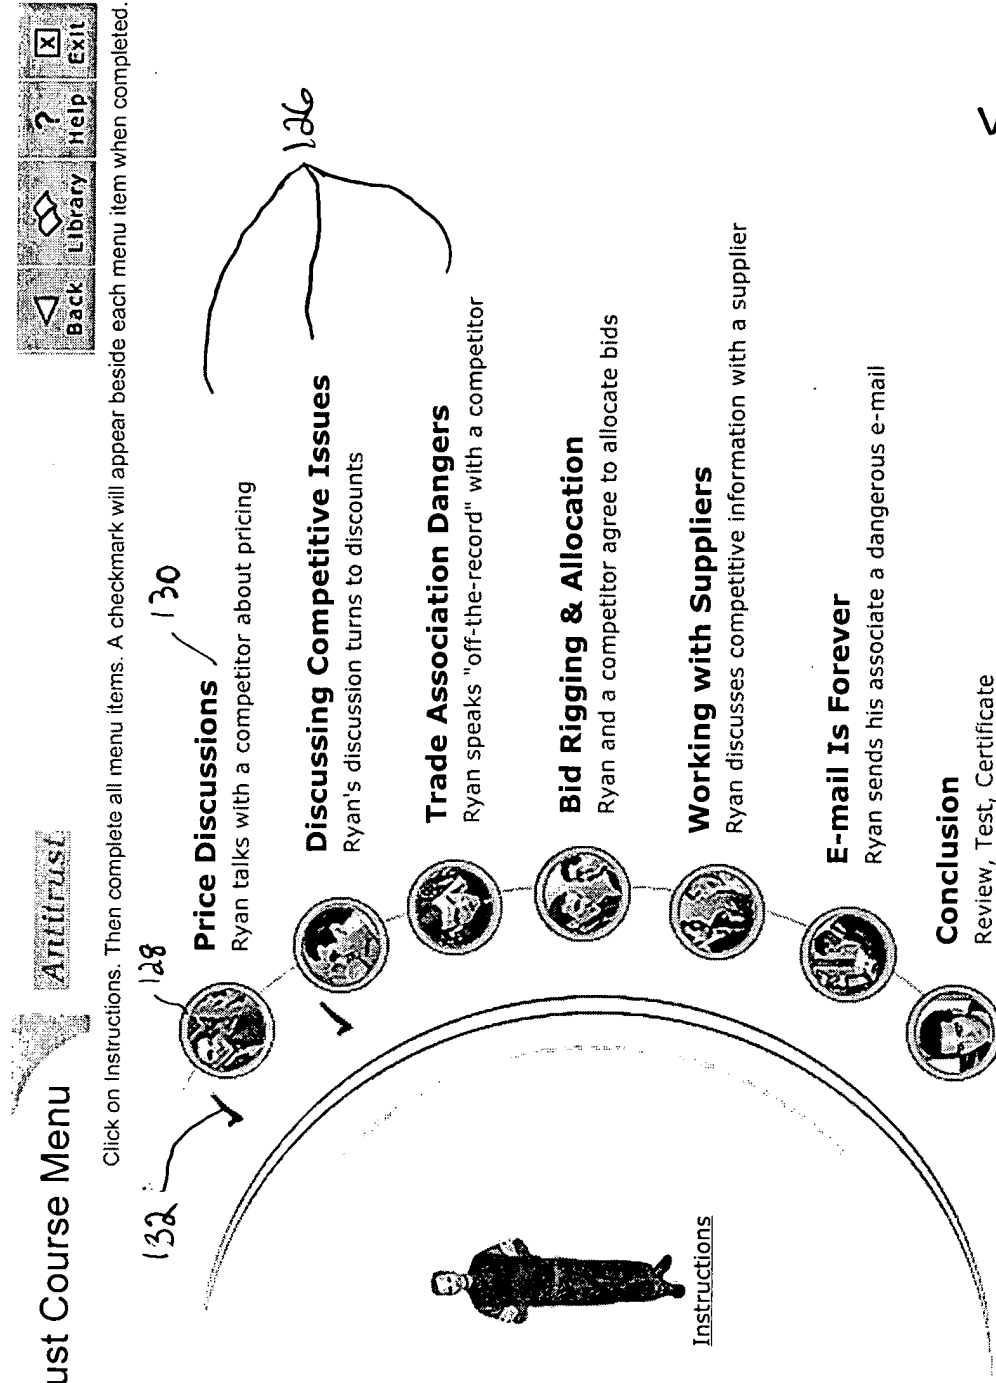

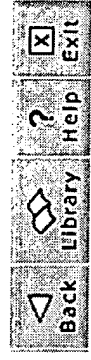

FIG. 5

Trade Association Dangers

Directions: Read the text, click underlined words, and complete items 1-5.

Never conduct "off-the-record" discussions with a competitor.

The government's evidence in price-fixing cases often can be traced to trade association meetings. When it comes to possible anti-competitive conduct, nothing's "off the record."

Some other key trade association rules:

- Trade association meetings are no place for people who don't understand the antitrust rules. Don't go if you haven't had antitrust training or if you don't know the risks.
- Trade association agendas, minutes or standard-setting activities should be reviewed by an antitrust lawyer.
- If someone begins to discuss a dangerous subject (e.g., price), don't just sit there! Loudly say that the discussion is improper and that you are leaving. Then get out of there and call your company's legal counsel.

Ryan asks Tom to keep their discussions "off-the-record" ...

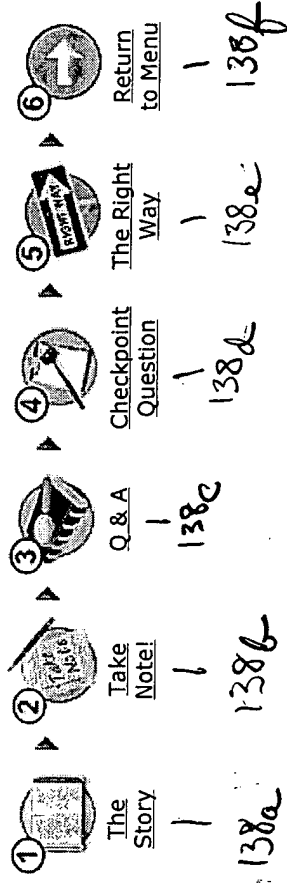

FIG. 6